Looking back it is clear: the Reformation was the sign that one age was drawing to an end and another age was dawning. The turn of the 15th to the 16th century brought much that was new. Continents were being discovered, technology was advancing, the status quo was challenged. Theologians in different parts of Europe questioned doctrines, thought-forms and thus social reality.

What began in those days was a shaking of the foundations. 500 years ago, new realities opened up in every area of life: the spoken languages of Europe were written down and superseded Latin. Pioneers questioned limits to thought and discovered the individual. Many aspects of life were freed from the fetters of church doctrine. Confessional divisions led to wars and later to new power relationships.

What began in those days is not yet over. Five centuries later, the Reformation Summer offers us an opportunity to reflect on past insights, to recognize present-day challenges, and to question – and reshape – the world.
Marlehn Thieme
member of the Council of the Evangelical Church in Germany and chair of the association “Reformation anniversary 2017”

I associate the Reformation anniversary with an approach to the future. After all, Reformation means constantly creating something new.

Prof. Dr. Gerhard Robbers
chair of the Steering Committee of the association “Reformation anniversary 2017”

The team from “Reformation anniversary 2017”, the people involved in many places worldwide, civil society organizations and also political leaders are confronting the challenges of the Reformation anniversary together. It is an adventure that we have been glad to embark on as partners.

Prof. Dr. Heinrich Bedford-Strohm
chair of the Council of the Evangelical Church in Germany

Let us make the Reformation anniversary in 2017 a great festival of Christ, as a testimony to our faith and our hope for a better world!

Prof. Dr. Christina Aus der Au
president of the 36th German Evangelical Kirchentag in Berlin and Wittenberg and the Kirchentag on the Way

Strictly speaking, in 2017 we will not be celebrating 500 years of Reformation – we will have been celebrating the Reformation for 500 years! And to be even more exact, Reformation has been happening not just for 500 years but quite a bit longer.

Prof. Dr. Christina Aus der Au
president of the 36th German Evangelical Kirchentag in Berlin and Wittenberg and the Kirchentag on the Way

Strictly speaking, in 2017 we will not be celebrating 500 years of Reformation – we will have been celebrating the Reformation for 500 years! And to be even more exact, Reformation has been happening not just for 500 years but quite a bit longer.
Ilse Junkermann
Bishop of the Evangelical Church in Central Germany

I hope that by celebrating and commemorating we can make an essential contribution to rediscovering the rich history of this whole region of Central Germany. All the people who live here can be proud of this history — and they may become curious to see how it gives them guidance for their lives.

Torsten Zugehör
Lord Mayor of Wittenberg

Thanks to the Reformation anniversary, Wittenberg is becoming the smallest great city in the world.
What society and the churches will celebrate from October 2016 is a new departure. 500 years ago, Martin Luther published his Ninety-Five Theses on trading in indulgences – and in so doing, made a public event of a movement that had already begun, when theologians and philosophers questioned the predominant doctrines: John Wyclif in England, Jan Hus in Bohemia, the Waldensians in Italy. Besides Martin Luther, Philipp Melanchthon and others in Wittenberg, its principal spokespersons were Ulrich Zwingli in Zurich and John Calvin in Geneva. They enabled a fresh, free approach to questions of faith and thereby a new view of the world. 500 years later, this is what we will celebrate in the Reformation Summer of 2017.

Reformation is a movement fed from many sources, time and again absorbing new insights from a constantly changing reality. Reformation is a process with many important and shining insights, but also with its dark sides. For example, Martin Luther’s anti-Judaism has been included in the discussion. Yet it is not Martin Luther that we will be celebrating in 2017 but the common new beginning.

Outward-looking, ecumenical and international – that will describe our quincentennial celebration in many places in Europe and the world, not to mention the World Reformation Exhibition. At the Kirchentag in Berlin and in venues “on the way” to the great festive service on 28 May 2017 we will sing and pray, hear God’s Word and also face up to current problems. We want to struggle for responses and guidance in conversation with the different denominations and religions and in listening together to people from other regions of the world, but also with the activists in civil society.

500 years later a new beginning is still imperative. This is also an opportunity for the younger generation: for the confirmation candidates and young people attending the camps in Wittenberg, for the volunteers working there for a year, and for all the stewards and other enthusiastic people lending a hand, without whom this celebratory year could not happen.

The 2017 Reformation anniversary will prove a source of renewal and inspiration on our way into the 21st century, of that I am convinced.
On the move
Kirchentage on the Way

Six Kirchentag-style gatherings on “the way” in eight Central German cities invite us to stop for a while on the way to the great festive service in Wittenberg. Like the Kirchentag in Berlin they will have the general theme “You see me”. These extra gatherings are an invitation to enjoy the hospitality of Central Germany.

With the triple motto “Music – Dispute – Life” Leipzig will bring together brass bands from the whole of Germany and also recall the Leipzig Disputation. Magdeburg has chosen the motto “You have 1 good message”, which recalls the existence in that city of one of the “propaganda” centres of the Reformation. There are plans for a parade of ships along the Elbe River. In Erfurt, where Martin Luther became a monk, the motto is “Light on Luther”. This will raise the question of what it means to be Christian in our day. The classical cities of Jena/Weimar will repeat the question asked by Gretchen in Goethe’s Faust, “Say, what do you think of religion?” In Dessau-Rosslau the motto is “Explore.Love.Want.Do”. And in Halle/Eisleben it is “Two cities for a Halle-lujah”.

Reformation Summer 2017
Worshipping and celebrating together

People from all over the world will gather on 27 and 28 May 2017 on the Elbe meadows outside the gates of Wittenberg. And, while looking across at the Castle Church and St Mary’s City Church, they can look back over 500 years of Reformation.

The first visitors will arrive on Saturday, hold a “night of lights” at sunset with the Taizé community by the riverbank and sleep under the stars on the meadows. Next morning they will welcome the sunrise with songs and prayers.

As the culmination of the Berlin Kirchentag and the Kirchentag on the Way, everyone will join in worship at a festive service at Sunday noon, giving thanks for God’s goodness and ecumenical fellowship. This will be a service that encourages us to spread the gospel in our own way – God willing!

A “festival of encounter” will follow – with food and drink, exchange and talk, spiced with information about the host region. And that will lead into a musical climax: a concert of celebrities, with a message encouraging us to get involved, politically and socially.
The World Reformation Exhibition will run from 20 May to 10 September 2017 in Wittenberg, inviting visitors to discover its seven Gates of Freedom. Devised by churches, institutions, initiatives and cultural workers from all over the world, the gates and their surrounding areas will demonstrate ways of perceiving the topic of Reformation.

The Welcome Gate is also a lookout tower and will give visitors an overview of the city. When they then set out on the walking tour through the Wittenberg embankments, they will come across the gate areas dedicated to Youth; Spirituality; Globalization/One World; Culture; Ecumenism and Religion; Justice, Peace and Care for Creation. This way, visitors can have a close-up, personalized experience of the exhibits and presentations of Reformation issues today.

In addition, the 16 theme weeks of the exhibition will offer a full programme on open-air stages and in event tents in the city – panel discussions, workshops and much more. It will thus point to the future, at a place where the world was changed, 500 years ago.

The programme of the World Reformation Exhibition is available at www.r2017.org.
Wittenberg’s Old Prison on the edge of the embankments is going to become a space for art: not pictorial depictions of the life and work of Martin Luther and other Reformers, but an encounter between contemporary art and insights of those who were pioneers of thought and faith, 500 years ago.

Luther’s moderate attitude to the prohibition of images in the Reformation period opened the door a crack to the modern age. “Pictures,” Martin Luther declared, “are neither good nor bad; you can have them or not have them.” This is a licence to reflect anew on the role and content of art – and to face this challenge time and again.

A team of top-notch curators under the leadership of Professor Dr. Walter Smerling (Foundation for Art and Culture) is inviting artists from all continents to grapple with the notion of Reformation. Besides established artists from the contemporary scene, there will also be room for young artists, quite in the spirit of the avant-garde.
From Turku (Finland) in the North to Sibiu (Romania) in the East, from Rome (Italy) in the South to Dublin (Ireland) in the West – the Reformation has left traces here, and far beyond, over the last 500 years. These stopovers illustrate the route of the storymobile "Stories on tour". Reformation stories – from then to now – will be collected at 68 European sites: over five centuries of history that have shaped the present and will form the future.

The storymobile will stop at every place on the roadmap for 36 hours. Regional and ecumenical partners will stage numerous events in order to uncover the local connections with Reformation history. Personal stories will testify to the relevance of Reformation perspectives. Each town or city on the Roadmap will send a memento to the World Reformation Exhibition in Wittenberg, where the tour will conclude on 20 May 2017.

All stopovers on the Roadmap are listed at www.r2017.org.

Stories on tour
European Reformation Roadmap trust and try

Confirmand and Youth Camps

Trust – or to use Luther’s word “fiducia” – is not just a theological centrepiece of the Reformation. Particularly for young people, trust is of central importance when it comes to coping with the challenges of life.

The Confirmand and Youth Camps from June to September 2017 in Wittenberg will offer thematic workshops, attractive evening programmes and mega worship services. They will invite young people to try out new things, to trust themselves – and the camp community. The confirmands can, of course, carry out their own project, but they can also pick up valuable new ideas to take back to their home churches, after five days living under canvas.

Older teenagers, as team leaders, will accompany the up to 1500 campers per week and play a key role. They will be responsible for the main thematic programme and for organizing the leisure-time activities. Team leaders will receive advance training at a special camp.

If you are interested in becoming a team leader, please contact us at teamer@r2017.org.

Volunteering for the Reformation anniversary

If you are interested, please contact us by summer 2016 at volunteers@r2017.org.

Generation 17

Volunteering for the Reformation anniversary

Setting out together for a city brimming with history – this is a one-off opportunity. Several hundred volunteers will form a unique community in Wittenberg for a year. They will live together, share their volunteer service and cooperate on the projects making up the Reformation Summer.

Volunteers will drive to the cities on the European Roadmap on the show truck. They will keep up supplies in the tent villages of the youth camps and welcome international visitors to the World Reformation Exhibition. Volunteers will translate, look after children and young people, support stage teams and be responsible for specific jobs in the organization office. They will be trained at workshops and can refresh their skills according to their interests. They can plan projects, organize their own leisure time and live their faith. All that is possible for Generation 17 thanks to the activities of “Reformation anniversary 2017”.

If you are interested, please contact us by summer 2016 at volunteers@r2017.org.
Contributing, participating, just being there

Short-term volunteers: Sign up from summer 2016 as a voluntary worker – in the context of the World Reformation Exhibition, Kirchentag on the Way, the festive weekend or the youth camps.

Long-term volunteers: Live and work for a gap year in Wittenberg in a community of hundreds of others taking a year out. Apply for a place now under the German schemes for post-secondary social service Freiwilliges Soziales Jahr or Bundesfreiwilligendienst.

Team leaders: Take responsibility as a team leader at the youth camps from June to September 2017. Support us in organizing and running the programme, and be part of the community.

Sponsors and partners: Whether from a company or an individual, whether you make an online donation or set up a standing order – all forms of support are welcome. We would be glad to discuss individual partnership packages.

Exhibitors, providers, artists, musicians: Play a part as exhibitor or provider, with an artistic or musical programme at the World Reformation Exhibition. We will discuss how this could work in a personal conversation.

Choirs, theatres, performers: Feed your ideas and contributions into the “Kirchentag on the Way” programme in one of eight central German cities – whether on stage or with your own action stand.

Team leaders: Take responsibility as a team leader at the youth camps from June to September 2017. Support us in organizing and running the programme, and be part of the community.

Sponsors and partners: Whether from a company or an individual, whether you make an online donation or set up a standing order – all forms of support are welcome. We would be glad to discuss individual partnership packages.

Exhibitors, providers, artists, musicians: Play a part as exhibitor or provider, with an artistic or musical programme at the World Reformation Exhibition. We will discuss how this could work in a personal conversation.

Choirs, theatres, performers: Feed your ideas and contributions into the “Kirchentag on the Way” programme in one of eight central German cities – whether on stage or with your own action stand.

Tickets

World Reformation Exhibition ‘Gates of Freedom’ including asisi Panorama LUTHER 1517 & Luther and the Avant-garde

€19 day pass
€14 reduced day pass
€35 family pass
under 25-year-olds, full-time students parents with children up to 25, grandparents with grandchildren up to 25

Kirchentage on the Way

€59 full-programme admission pass
€42 reduced admission pass
€105 family pass
under 25-year-olds or students parents with children under 25, grandparents with grandchildren under 25

asisi Panorama LUTHER 1517

€11 adults
€9 reduced
€4 children
full-time students, severely disabled persons
6 to 16 years of age

For information on additional types of ticket and application details, see www.r2017.org/eintritt.

Imprint
Publisher
Reformationsjubiläum 2017 e.V. Executive directors Hartwig Bodmann, Ulrich Schneider (responsible under press law) Neustr. 10b, 06886 Lutherstadt Wittenberg, Germany

Editorial board Cathrine Schweikardt, Christof Vetter

Translation Elaine Griffiths

Print LASERLINE Digitales Druckzentrum Bucec & Co. Berlin KG

More information: www.r2017.org Questions to: info@r2017.org